'GET ON WITH IT' . . .

Readers of Herald editorials and Page 1 columns over the past dozen years will find one quality reitereated in a phrase something like "let's get on with it."

A former president, quite different from NOW except in his distaste for waste, saw the same thing.

People these days have to have "it all" to compete in a modern society. But without the ability to "get on with it" and "keep on keeping on" the other skills count for little.

We quote Calvin Cooldige:

"Nothing in the world can take the place of persistence."

"Talent will not; nothing is more common than unsuccessful men with talent."

"Genius will not; unrewarded genius is almost a proverb."

"Education will not; the world is full of educated derelicts."

"Persistence and determination alone are omnipotent."

"The slogan 'press on' has solved all and always will solve the problems of the human race."

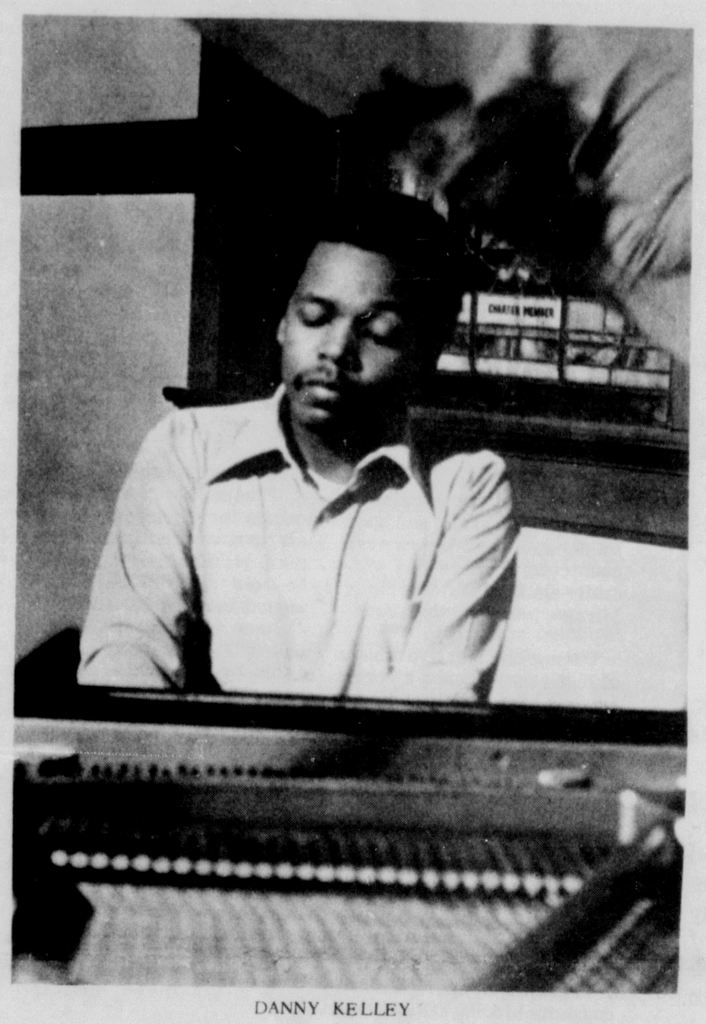
State Rests In Trigg Trial



DANNY KELLEY

By Lloyd Albertson

The trial of Jim Jones Trigg, Jr., of Gause, charged with the murder of Richard Lee Freeman, was recessed shortly after noon Friday by Judge W. C. Wallace until 9 Monday morning after the state rested its case.

Trigg's trial started in 20th District Court Tuesday and 23 witnesses were heard before the recess on Friday.

Freeman's body was found in a shallow grave on February 23, 1974, on a farm near Gause that was owned by L. L. Walker and who rented a house on it to Trigg. Trigg was arrested in Fresno, California on May 30, last year.

Earlier both Freeman and Trigg were charged in connection with the robbery of a bank in Calvert on November 28, 1973, during which some $33,000 was taken.

Testimony about this phase of the case was given by three of the state's early witnesses. R. A. (Rickie) Meohr of Bryan stated that on November 28, 1973, during the noon hour while he was waiting for a warehouse where he worked to open at 1 p.m. , he saw Trigg and Freeman together in a car at a service station and he saw a good sized grocery sack on the car floor filled with money in bills of different denominations. He said he knew both Freeman and Trigg by sight.

Billy R. Hall, presently chairman of the board of Robinson State Bank, but in 1973 with the bank in Calvert, testified that the bank was robbed on November 28, and he was ordered at gunpoint to take money from the vault and put it in a paper sack, then was forced to go with the robberin his own car for about five miles before being released. Hall said he was called to the Walker farm to view Freeman's body after it was discovered.

Freeman's wife, Mrs. Mary Freeman, testified that Freeman showed her a large amount of money in their home at Bryan on the occasion. This was in late 1973. She said she saw Freeman last about February 18, 1974, a few days before she was notified that his body was found on the 23rd.

Most of the other testimony in the case was from law officers and concerned the finding of Freeman's body and their investigation of the crime.

The search began when Freeman's brother, Michael Freeman, reported him missing on February 19 after receiving a phone call from Mary Freeman. He testified he reported it to law officers in Bryan.

The search intensified after Freeman 's car was found in Bryan on February 22. Bobby L. Riggs, of the Bryan police department, testified that his examination of the car showed blood in the trunk and on a jack and jack handle. Also a floorboard mat was missing as shown by pictures he took of the vehicle.

Several other law officers testified about searching the Walker farm on Feb. 23 and finding the dead Freeman. Sheriff E. B. Elliot of Robertson County said Harold Robinson made the discovery about noon on the west side of the farm. Other officers there were Bill Casper, Charles Connel, a Texas Ranger, and

7 Local Workers Affected By Alcoa Layoff

Only seven Cameron workers were caught in a 65-man layoff at Alcoa's Rockdale Works last week when the company announced a four percent production cutback at the Rockdale smelter.

Caldwell was worst hit as there were 12 Caldwell residents caught in the layoff. Rockdale had 10, Taylor 5, Thorndale 4, Franklin, Hearne, and Lexington 3 each, Calvert, Giddings, and Thrall 2 each, and Buckholts, Davilla, Dime Box, Deanville, Elgin, Gause, Marlin, Milano, Rogers,Rosebud, San Saba, and Smithville 1 each.

The layoffs were based on seniority and no persons employed earlier than May 1, 1974 were affected.

Meanwhile, company officials voiced assurance that the cutback, triggered by the nation's economic slump, has not curtailed or delayed current multi-million-dollar modernizatin work at the plant, nor has it altered plans for a huge expansion of generating capacities at Industrial Generating Co.

Construction on the powerplant addition will start in 1977 and be completed by 1980. It will more than double the power plant, from its present 360 megawatt capacity to 935 megawatts. When complete, it will mean about 150 new jobs. The construction phase will employ some 600 people.

Alcoa's Rockdale Works will not be affected by an announcement from Pittsburgh last week that by March 1 its domestic primary aluminum production operating level will be at approximately 91 percent of its installed annual capacity of its combined operations.

Correction

Time for the public hearing for the city's plans under the Community Development Act will be 8 p.m. Tuesday, instead of 7 p.m. as noted in Thursday's Herald. The meeting will be held at Methodist Fellowship Hall and residents are urged to attend.

Westinghouse Lays Off 200

GEORGETOWN

A dream for a 3400-acre Westinghouse community, a city focused on the $30 million turbine plant at Round Rock, is in jeopardy. Some 200 workers have been laid off, as the financial plight of troubled electric utilities is forcing discontinuation of turbine manufacturing at the plant by early April.

Belton To Receive Grant

BELTON

Belton can expect to receive its $1,383,000 sewer grant, the city manager told council members lat week. The Environment Protection Agency grant has been approved for an engineering study. "We cannot believe that the federal agencies will spend this amount on planning and engineering, then deny the funds for the actual project," the city manager told concilmen.

Of the total loans made, 24 were for new home construction for a total of $406,960; 4 for home improvement, for a total of $12,200; and purchase of 4 existing dwellings for a total of $42,500.

Moving Schools Ahead . . .

Cameron school leaders are settling in for a view forward toward the physical needs of the system.

Springboard the other night was a review of an accreditation report from Texas Education Agency which detailed problems hinging heavily on solutions to space needs.

The board discussed need to obtain additional land in the vicinity of the Yoe Campus.

Need is apparent for a new gymnasium, expansion of Yoe High School and replacement of Ada Henderson School, all of which were among proposals for two issues.

O. J. Thomas School is the most complete facility under one roof and useful for years to come, but it will be among the first of the newer facilities to need renovation.

School boards of recent decades have followed a pattern of building separate facilities for homemaking, band, vocational agriculture, field house in the Yoe Field area. Some space remains in that area where two old houses belonging to CISD still stand.

But they are old, even for offices or special education.

A new gym would solve the physical education dilemma. It would provide two gyms and possible rehabilitation of the old would add the third.

Wings could be added to Ben Milam School, like those science wings projected for Yoe High Scool, which would fill the playground space on the northeast side of Yoe Campus. Additional space would be necessary for playgrounds and any additional buildings and paking.

Construction of a park across from OJT would create playground space for mid-school students, allowing space on campus for additional construction if needed in that area. Otherwise, the OJT school site is already too small for the number of students on campus in the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades.

These are a few of the things Supt. Dulin and the board are viewing. With accreditation review a real prospect in the next year or two, officials are evaluating what can be done to alleviate these obvious needs.

Exhibition Site . . .

Well, the annual junior livestock show is history, but a more permanent site for future shows is being cleared in the three-block vicinity of the old City Hall.

And North Milam United Fund added $1,000 to a "war chest" for construction of such a facility by livestockmen, Cameron residents, and community planners.

The stock picture is murky at present as the agri-business picture is undergoing the stresses of a plateaued economy, but the long run planning is underway to house this show and others in proper facilities useful to both agri-business and Cameron.

The quality of the animals remains. Youngsters still work as hard as ever to meet judging standards. It is worth the effort.

But the Central Texas community will find friends in Cameron who are projecting for both industry and agriculture in a mulit-purpose center in stock shows, exhibitions and farmer's market type of functions.

Sheriff Carl Black of Milam County.

Freeman's body was lying face down in a 3 1/2 foot deep grave and a car floor mat was under him. The officers also found blood on the ground, near the house, on the fence, and on other areas.

Another witness, Dr. Kenneth Wistruck, a pathologist of Waco, testified that he performed an autopsy on Freeman's body at Marek-Burns-Laywell funeral home and stated he was shot twice in the upper body and arm, and he recovered one bullet. Death was due to this and shock.

Another witness, Lorah Ann Sheldine, of Florient, Missouri, but formerly of College Station, testified that during 1973 and early 1974 she worked for Trigg at a gasoline service station and noticed that about February 18, 1974, he appeared rather agitated. Earlier, when Trigg visited the station he also seemed agitated. But then she testified that Trigg remarked to her: "I don't think he will bother me any more."

Witnesses heard Friday morning were four FBI agents who investigated different pieces of evidence.

Johnny L. Went, a FBI agent in San Antonio, testified that on May 23, 1974, he investigated a 1969 Pontiac that had been abandoned at the International Airport in San Antonio and found a 38 cal. Colt revolver, a pistol holster and ammunition in it. He said the holster had James J. Trigg Jr.,--A&M stamped on it. He sent the revolver and cartridges to the FBI in Washington for analysis.

Russell Daviees, with the FBI office in Washington, stated that he found a latent fingerprint on the barrel of the 38 cal. and that it matched one of a picutre of one of Trigg's prints. Another FBI agent from the Washginton lab, James B. Rollbach, who specializes in firearms identification, testified that on June 17, 1974, he checked bullets fired from the 38 cal. revolver found in the Pontiac in San Antonio with the one taken fromFreeman's body, and they matched. He said they both definitely were fired from the 38 cal. revolver.

Final witness was Stanley Boase of Bryan who testified Trigg had purchased a 38 cal. Colt on December 11, 1973 and ammunition for it.

The jury hearing the case includes Mrs. G. H. Tucker, Mrs. Dan F. Balusek, John A. Fraser, Marcia Sulak, W. A. Nichols, Henry Purvis, Mrs. Elmo Patschke, Clyde Kamman, Gilbert O.Meldo, Mrs. Melba Peterson, Adrian I. Moore Jr., and John Lane Fisher.

France Doubles Exports Of Arms

PARIS

Reuter--In the escalating race to sell arms and gain influence in the oil-rich Arab countries, France has virtually doubled its exports of Mirage jets and other sophisticated equipment.

During the first five months of last year, French aircraft exports have nearly equalled the whole of last year's record total receipts, the bulk going to the Arab world.

The concentrated drive has put France well ahead of Britain and brought it in direct competition with the United States and Soviet Union in the fight to capture thriving markets in the Middle East and other parts of the world.

French and Americans are doggedly bidding against each other for the replacement of U. S. F-104G Interceptor aircraft in four NATO countries, a 400-aircraft order worth $3.6 billion which has been dubbed the "arms deal of the century."

From January to May last year, sales of French aircraft and other aerospace equipment netted 4.5 billion francs (about 900 million dollars), according to official statistics published.

Jean Dours, delegate-general of the French federation of aierospace industries, Union Sydnicale Des Industries Aeronautiques Et Spatiales (USIAS), says that sales of military equipment abroad are now running at such a rate that they have offset the oil-related cutback in civil aviation orders.

"The military sector accounts for 73 percent of overall turnover and remains the main pillar of our exports," he told the USIAS board's annual meeting here recently.

Since President Valery Giscard D'Estaing has lifted the French arms embargo to the Middle East, French aircraft and missile manufacturers hope to reap both the Arab and Israeli war markets.

These manufacturers are now pressing the government to drop from contracts the clause forbidding re-export on material sold to certain countries such as Libya.

Saudi Arabia has already ordered three squadrons of deep-penetration French Mirage III fighter-bombers, which observers here believe are destined for Egypt.

President Anwar Sadat admitted recently that friendly countries were buying military aircraft for Egypt to replace losses in the 1973 October war with Israel.

The Egyptian leader is expected to bring an arms shopping list which will include the Mirage F1, the latest French combat aircraft.

Kuwait, involved in a one billion dollar expansion of its armed forces, has already purchased 18 Mirage F-1 aircraft and is now seeking missile-launching speedboats and other weaponry.

The Kuwaiti ruler, Sheikh Sabah Al Salim Al Sabah, concerned about a continuing Soviet arms buildup in neighboring Iraq, is also turning to the United States for large purchases.

The Russians have been doing good business with the Arab countries on a strictly hard-currency cash-and-carry basis in the best capitalist traditions.

File Early For Faster Tax Refund

Taxpayers expecting tax refunds will receive them much sooner if they file their returns now, Howard C.Longley, acting district director of Internal Revenue for southern Texas, said today.

"If you file now, there's a good chance you'll receive refund in five weeks," he pointed out. "If you file later, you may have to wai as long as eight weeks," he added.

"January is a relatively slow month at IRS service centers," he explained, "which means returns can be processed and refunds issued faster than later in the filing period."

"During late March and April , however," Longley said, "returns come in at an accelerated rate and the processing cycle takes longer, whch delays refunds."

"So, if you want that refund fast, file early," the tax official advised. "After all, it's your money."

Taxpayers also can speed the process by using the pre addressed label and the special envelope included in the tax package they received in the mail, the IRS spokesman said.

LETTERS

January 13, 1975

TO ALL RESIDENTS OF MILAM COUNTY:

You in Milam County have supported one of the most humane efforts alive in our country today, that one of voluntarily giving blood! You've rolled up your sleeves, held out an arm, and collectively have donated many life-saving pints of blood. You've truly given of yourselves so that someone else might have health and even life. Maybe your bint went to a neighbor who underwent surgery -- or to the little boy in the next county who suffers from hemophilia. Chances are you have no idea who received your blood but you didn't ask. You just voluntarily gave knowing that it was needed.

You can be very proud of the part you've had in this Blood Program--because of you the donor, the volunteer, we have not had to say "No" to an emergency in any of the areas that are served by this Central Texas Red Cross Blood Program. We've been able to meet the needs of all our patients an the requests of our doctors because you so willingly gave.

It seems so little for all that you've done, but I would like to say "Thank you" on behalf of all the people who received your blood, the doctors who required it in order to carry on with their job, and the entire Red Cross Blood Center Staff and Volunteers.

"Will there be enough electric power this winter in the area served by TP&L?"

Texas Power & Light has the generating plants, the personnel and the lines to produce and deliver all the power its customers will need. One more "ingredient" is essential. Fuel.

All but one of TP&L's plants now in operation were designed and built to use natural gas as a fuel. If it should become necessary for TP&L's suppliers of gas to curtail deliveries, these plants would continue to operate with fuel oil stored at the plants for just such a condition.

A very large generating plant located near Fairfield, Texas uses lignite-coal as a fuel. This plant is supplied with lignite on a continuous basis from deposits near the plant. In addition, there is a reserve stockpile of lignite sufficient to operate the plant at maximum capacity for approximately two weeks.

Seven other lignite-fueled generating units are now under construction. A nuclear-fueled plant is scheduled to begin supplying power in 1980.

TP&L expects to provide adequate electric power to all its customers throughout this winter . . . and in the future . . . but we ask your wise use of electricity to help assure that there will be no shortage for anyone.

The trial of three young French soldiers accused of leading a demonstration for better conditions has highlighted the unrest among France's military conscripts. WASHINGTON

World finance ministers and officials met here this week for a series of critical discussions on adapting the international monetary system to cope with the ailing world economy. The results of their talks may indirectly affect the lives of peoples in rich and poor countries alike, but the complexity of world finance often baffles the uninitiated.

Moonlighting Income May Be Subject To Income Tax

The income of mmonlighters could be subject to self-employment tax, the Internal Revenue Service said.

D. J. Lantonio, Assistant District Director of IRS for southern Texas, pointed out that, for self-employment tax purposes, "self-employed" means more than regular full-time business activities. It also covers certain part-time work, including work you do at home or on the side in addition to your regular job.

"It is important for the person with a sideline job to pay the tax," Lantonio stressed, "to ensure that he gets full social security credit for all his earnings."

"You must file an income tax return and pay self-employment tax if you have net earnings from self-employment of $400 or more, even though you are not otherwise required to file an income tax return," he added.

An example cited by the tax official as an activity subject to self-employment tax is bookkeeping and related services for several clients by an individual serving as an independent contractor. Another example is repair work on radios and television performed by an individual in his home as a sideline.

Owners of boarding houses and apartment houses, tourist homes, or motels are subject to self-employment tax on income received if services are also rendered for the occupants.

Other sideline income usually subject to self-employment tax, according to Lantonio, comes from activities involving sewing and alterations, musicians' fee, contract labor, director's fees, officiating at sports, construction work, bookkeeping , speciality sales and repair, painting, architectural services, owning of taxicab.

He explained that the self-employment tax is part of the system providing social security coverage for persons who work for themselves. Each self-employed person must pay self-employment tax on part or all of his income tohelp finance social security benefits, which are payable to self-employed persons as well as wage earners.

Although a husband files a joint return with his wife, the wife is not considered to be a self-employed person with respect to the husband's net earnings from self-employment. If the wife has self-employment income of her own, he said, that income is subject to the self-employment tax.

ON FLOWER ARRANGING--Mrs. Jack Ebert demonstrates the art of Japanese flower arranging at the January meeting of the Fleur de lis Garden Club. Mrs. Ebert, who studied oriental flower arranging while a resident of Japan, was guest speaker for the Club's program when plans for an oriental flower show were announced.

Club Observes Art Of Japanese Flower Arranging

Mrs. Jack Ebert of Temple described Japanese flower arranging as an "ordered art form with the objective to enhance nature rather than imitate it" in a program presented to the Fleur de lis Garden Club Tuesday evening.

The program and meeting, held at the home of Mrs. E. Douglas Perrin, was in preparation for the Club's spring flower show "Ikabana--A Flower Show in the Oriental Manner" scheduled for March. 4.

Mrs. Ebert, who studied Japanese flower arranging while a resident in Japan, demonstrated the basic lines using three principal branches. She also showed how auxiliary branches, complimenting the basic line, could be added as needed for container shape or placement of the arrangement.

She also displayed an assortment of containers able for oriental flower arranging and several books on the art of Japanese flower arranging.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Don Humble, flower show chairman, discussed plans for the spring show and placements were drawn for artistic arrangements.

Officers for the 1975-76 Club year were elected. Mrs. Bill McCutchen was elected president, succeeding Mrs. Ed Magre; Mrs. Griffin Barrett, vice president; Mrs. James Camp, recording secretary; Mrs. Bobby Schiller, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Douglas Buck, treasurer; Mrs. Dan McDaniel, parlimentarian; Mrs. Douglas Perrin, historian; and Mrs. Frank Luecke, reporter.

The international flavor of the program underscored by refreshments which featured a variety of coffees, spiced tea, and dessert breads. A collection of international dolls centered the serving table.

Co-hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Dana Kestenbaum, Mrs. Dan McDaniel, and Mrs. Perrin.

Special guests included Mrs. John Vardiman, Mrs. Harold Roberts, and Mrs. Lovic Baugh.

Good Relations Take Effort

COLLEGE STATION

Many parents resolve to begin the new year by strengthening relationships with their children. But this takes more effort than just saying the words, according to one family life education specialist.

She's Ilene Carrington, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Good relationships don't just happen--they must be nurtured," she reminded.

One of a parent's main responsibilities should be to help a child become independent so he'll be ready to leave home. Becoming a mature individual who can accept responsibility for his actions begins early, she pointed out.

"Parents encourage independency by providing opportunities for their children to learn how to behave in a variety of situations.

"Sometimes a child needs positive instructions to help him know what is appropriate behavior. Sincere praise for accomplishments promotes a feeling of self-confidence and a willingness to try something new," she said.

Parents help children learn to make their own decisions by discussing a situation and all possible alternatives.

Personal Mention

Stanley C. Graves of Buckholts was recognized for his academic achievement during the fall semester at Texas Tech University by being named to the dean's honor list. To be eligible for this honor, students were required to have a grade point average of 3.0 on a 4.0 scale.

YFC To Meet

The Buckholts Young Farmers Chapter will meet Monday, January 20, at 7:30 in the Buckholts' school homemaking building. An income tax representative from Temple will meet with the group. All members and their wives are urged to attend.

THE BIG STATE'S BEST?

Some Schoolboy football recruiters feel Hooks' Billy Sims, 6-1, 190, and rapid, is the top running back among Texas' current crop of college hopefuls. Insiders say Sims has narrowed his choice to the University of Texas or Oklahoma. . .It is really true that the day after signing with a SWC school, one of the state's blue-ribbon Junior College gridders sported around in a new $7,000 sports car?

Who could have believed the horrors that were to befall the Astros the past two winters? First, of course, Centerfielder Cesar Cedeno, one of the hottest young stars in baseball, was involved in the killing of a young unmarried woman in his hotel room. Now, less than 12 months later, Double No-hit Pitcher, Don Wilson, only 29 years old, dies in a tragic carbon monoxide incident which also takes the life of a five year old son.

"LITTLE FRITZ"

One of the state's better high school basketball players? Check Pasadena High's 6-3 Fritzie Connally, son of the Aggie star of the Ken Loeffler era. . .

The Hawaii U. Rainbows, who lost to U. of Houston in first round of the Bluebonnet Bowl basketball tournament, started Tommy Baker, a seven-footer, at Center.

Barker, like Corrigan, took a circuitous route to fame. Or, to put it mildly, Tommy took the long route from hometown Harlingen, Texas, to Houston, largest city in the state. First Barker signed a SWC Letter-of-Intent with University of Texas. Then, he defected to Minnesota U. via the National Letter-of-Intent route.

After a Minnesota whirl, Barker enrolled at Northern Idaho State and then dropped over to Hawaii to complete his basketball eligibility.

CONSUMER CORNER

PAY-CABLE TV

Take the whole family to a first-run movie for a total ticket price of less than a dollar. Watch a special screening of a major sports event with the folks from your carpool, again for about 25 cents per person.

Movie goers and sports fans know such ticket prices don't exist anymore. Tickets usually range from $2 to $8 apiece. In the past two years, however, a new service has been developing which lowers the price of tickets and at the same time increases the choice of available entertainment.

The new box office is a small electronic gadget atop a home TV set equipped for cable TV. This optional service — pay cable TV — is now used by about 100,000 families in 50 communities throughout the U.S. Subscribers typically pay about $6 to $8 per month for a package of sports events not carried on commercial TV and new Hollywood movies.

All programs are presented without commercial interruptions or editing.

At recent FCC hearings dozens of witnesses from civic and public interest groups and several Congressmen explained that pay cable would offer viewers a greater freedom of choice in selecting entertainment. They also encouraged the FCC to adopt new rules to promote freedom of choice on pay cable.

The U.S. Department of Justice Antitrust Division, also calling for relaxed rules, pointed out that new regulations will permit the public "to buy additional entertainment and other programs which they would like to enjoy."

Similarly, the Senate Antitrust Subcommittee told the FCC that present restrictions preclude the public from choosing the best possible entertainment available.

Cultural organizations which can never have their operas, ballets or symphonies carried on commercial TV also asked the FCC to ease the rules in order to open up a new channel of programs to the millions of Americans who want to see such performances.

City officials, minority groups, political organizations, and sports promoters also joined in requests for FCC rules which foster market place decisions and constitutionally guarantee freedom of choice.

The FCC, after hearing nearly 100 witnesses, is formulating new rules for pay cable operations — including use of new movies and "classic" films of the Golden Age of Hollywood. The rules will also affect which sports events not now shown on any television stations can be carried on pay cable.

As one public interest group spokesman told the FCC, "Diversity is the key word without diversity there can be no freedom of choice, no tolerance for minority views, no respect for differences in life styles, tastes or attitudes. . . The FCC should lift the clouds of favoritism, private interest and prohibition and let cable develop in the traditional American way to provide greater opportunities and broader horizons for all our citizens."

By Jack House. The Director Teacher's Scotch Information Centre

Bowling over Giants

At one time the Scots were described in reference books as the tallest white men in the world. There are still plenty of tall stories about Scottish giants and the site of the story of "Jack the Giant Killer" is supposed to be in Scotland.

If you visit Tweedsmuir, on the famous fishing river Tweed, you will be shown the Giant's Grave, marked by two standing stones about 14 feet apart. Near by is a hazel grove from which brave Jack is supposed to have fired the arrow which brought the giant down.

If this is not enough proof that there were giants in those days, what about the Duke of Argyll's Bowling Green? This is actually a group of high mountains in Argyllshire, with Loch Long on one side and Loch Goil on the other. The Duke of Argyll is the head of Clan Campbell and the Campbells wanted to impress other Clans with the height and spirit of their chiefs. So they said that the Duke of Argyll was so great that he played his game of bowls across the mountains.

Some spoilsports aver that "Bowling Green" is a corruption of Gaelic words meaning "the high ridges", but Teacher's Scotch Information Centre is spirited enough to take the romantic view and looks forward to seeing the present Duke of Argyll playing bowls there.

Jobless May Qualify For New Benefit

AUSTIN

Jobless workers who are not eligible for unemployment compensation may possibly qualify for a new type of benefits, Special Unemployment Assistance (SUA), according to Henry Rothell, administrator of the Texas Employment Commission.

The new unemployment assistance measure is authorized under the Special Employment Assistance Act of 1974 which President Gerald Ford signed into law December 31.

Special Unemployment Assistance makes unemployment benefits possible for persons such as domestics, agricultural workers, employees of city and county governments, and various other workers currently ineligible for unemployment compensation.

In Texas, SUA claimants can receive a maximum of $63 per week for as long as 26 weeks, Rothell said. SUA payments will be made entirely from Federal funds and paid in accordance with the general provision s of the Texas Unemployment Compensation Act.

"Workers who have insufficient earnings in covered employment to be eligible for unemployment compensation under any State or Federal law," Rothell said, "may qualify for SUA if they present evidence of employment and earnings during the 52 weeks prior to iling their claim which would be sufficient to qualify for unemploument insurance if the work had been in covered employment."

An SUA claim may be filed at the nearest TEC local office of itinerant service point in the state. When a worker goes to an office to file a claim, he should take his Social Security card and a list of names and addresses of all employers for whom he worked during the most recent 52 weeks, along with documentary proof of work and earnings, the TEC administrator said.

Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. The union I belong to just went on strike. I'm receiving unemployment payments now from a fund to which I contributed. Are these payments taxable?

A. Unemployment benefit payments you receive from a fund to which you voluntarily contribute, whether union established or established as a private, non-union fund, are income only to the extent that they exceed you payments to the fund.

Q. My sister and I just started a joint savings account. Who pays the tax on the interest on our savings?

A. If two or more persons hold a saving account, bonds or other interest producing property as joint tenants, tenants by the entirety, or tenants in common, the interest is considered received by each person to the extent that person is entitled under local law to a share of such interest. Each owner will report his of her share of such interest under the same method, whether cash or accural, that he or she uses to report income.

Q. Can I exclude the first $100 of dividends I received as a result of shares I bought in a real eststе investment trust?

A. No, Ordinary dividends received by shareholders of a real eststе investment trust are nonqualifying dividends. They are included in the dividends reported on Line 10a of Form 1040 of 1040A, U. A. Individual Income Tax Return. However, they do not qualify for the $100 dividend exclusion claimed on line 10b.

Q. What does the IRS service center do?

A. The functions of IRS service centers are to process tax returns and reltedh accountability records for Internal Revenue taxes collected within their respective regions. Typical activities include the processing, analysis, and accounting control of income tax returns, estimated tax returns, wage and excise tax returns, corporation tax returns, income information documents, and mailing of income tax forms toindividual taxpayers. Service centers also plan, direct, and functions.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

Consumer debt--we've all been reading about it, and most of us have experienced it in some measure.

It's a well-publicized fact that many consumers who previously committed themselves and part of their income for time payments on major appliances, cars, revolving charge accounts, perhaps loans, are now facing a money crunch. This is because other bills for essentials such as gasoline, utilities, food, clothing, and housing have skyrocketed in the meantime in a manner which couldn't be foreseen.

Some consumers who have never before had money problems are shocked to realize that their money bill s eat up all of their paycheck--and then some.

What happens in such a situation, and what can a consumer do about it? The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division lawyers say many consumers simply do not know how to extricate themselves when they have been caught up in a web of debt.

Some refuse to accept the fact that they must make changes in their way of living. Others panic, not knowing how to deal with the problem, or who to turn to for information and ass.stance. Still others try to ignore the problem, hoping that in a few months it will correct itself.

But most often, say our Consumer Protection experts, this just doesn't happen. What does happen is that the situation usually gets worse. Sometimes it isn't until letters from creditors begin to arrive, pressing for payment of overdue bills, that the consumer faces the fact that adjustments must be made.

By that time, his overdue debts may have been turned over to a professional debt collection agency by his creditors, who themselves may be caught in a money crunch.

Many debt collction agencies perform a necessary service for creditors, and operate strictly within legal and ethical bounds. A few, however, do not.

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division attorneys remind consumers that debt collectors who use threats, harassment, or unfair means to collect payments are violating the Texas Debt Collection Practice Act.

In the Attorney General's brochure "A Practical Primer for the Texas Consumer," several examples of specific illegal actions are included:

--Threatening to file unwarranted criminal charges against a person.

--Using profane or obscene language to abuse a consumer.

--Making annoying telephone calls to the consumer or his family.

--Trying to collect extra charges not legally chargeable to the consumer.

Others include using a misleading name to contact a consumer; misrepresenting that the agency is in some way connected with a federal, state, or local government entity by use of some official-looking insignia; or misrepresenting that a debt is bein g collected by an attorney if this is not the case.

4-H News

The Milam County Horse Club met Tuesday, Jan. 7, and voted to hold their first February meeting on the first Saturday of the month instead of Tuesday so that students from A&M can talk to members about judging horses.

The club had two visitors, Ricky Davidson and Dave Vincent, who are prospective members.

Members and parents of the club helped in the concession stand at the junior livestock show Saturday. They included Gary, Ronnie, and Terry Bleeker; Denise, Petrica, Janesa Biehle; Geogre and Debbie Malone; Mary and Susan Loehr; and Larry Jackson.

Debbie Malone, the Milam County Miss 4-H, was also one of the girls handing out ribbons to contestnats in the beef heifer and steer division.

Denise and Patrice Biehle showed Charolais breed heifers, and Denise won fourth place and Petrice won fifth. Margaret Graham showed a braham heifer and won fourth place. Ronnie Bleeker showed a pig and won fourth and eighth places.

The club would like to thank Rodney Kruse for all his help and wishes him the best of luck.
